Tentang Saya: I am a Telkom University student with a strong interest in web development and cybersecurity. I am proficient in Python and C programming languages and continue to develop my skills in designing and building efficient, secure, and user-friendly web applications. I am also interested in learning more about network security, system vulnerability analysis, and digital data protection. In addition to my technical skills, I have a strong passion for learning, am adaptable, and enjoy working in a team. My goal is a career in information technology, with a focus on developing innovative and secure systems to support future digital advancements.
